The School of Commerce and Management of ARKA JAIN University in association with Vaikunth Mehta National Institute of Cooperative Management (A Grant-in-aid Institution under Ministry of Agriculture & Farmers Welfare, Government of India) has organized ‘ONE DAY FACULTY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM’ entitled “DEVELOPING THE SKILLS FOR MAKING ONLINE TEACHING – LEARNING PROCESS INTERESTING, ENSURING STUDENT ENGAGEMENT”.

The occasion was graced by the presence of Hon’ble Vice-Chancellor of the University, Dr. S.S. Razi. Prof. Damodar Acharya, Former Director, IIT Kharagpur and Former Chairman, AICTE, was the Chief Guest who addressed the audience with his views on ‘Need and Rationale’ of the FDP. Rightly pointed out by our Chief Guest, the traditional teaching also known as Chalk and Talk enables an ecosystem for peer learning and self-development but thanks to the pandemic the entire teaching pedagogy changed overnight requiring a lot of graphic orientation. Dr. Arunava Narayan Mukherjee, Dean, School of Commerce and Management enlightened the participants on the ‘Ethos of Teaching’ where he integrated Swami Vivekananda’s ideology in the present scenario helping the participants get a firm grip on the philosophical aspect of teaching.

The second session began with the topic ‘Planning Digital Andragogy’ by Prof. Neha Aggarwal where she threw light on the fact that adult learners are self-motivated in nature and only focus on the information which they believe is useful to them which is why learning outcomes should be discussed before starting a session. Session three was addressed by Dr. Charu Wadhwa and Prof. Ankita Singh on the topic ‘Managing Student Engagement by Game based Learning’ where in they gave noteworthy suggestions on how to create curiosity and excitement by integrating the learning aspect with a game and reiterated how students automatically assist themselves and learn through their own participation.

The fourth session was addressed by Dr. Pompe Das Sengupta and Prof. Abhishek Upadhyay on the topic 'The Road Ahead: Digital Heutagogy' who discussed about the background of Pedagogy, Andragogy and Heutagogy, the role of Andragogy and Heutagogy in E-Learning, Single and Double Loop Learning and its integration with SAMR model.

The Post lunch session was addressed by Dr. Manisha Paliwal. Professor and Head, Centre for Co-operative Management and Centre for Gender Studies Vaikunth Mehta National Institute of Cooperative Management. She stressed upon the need for course designing and different teaching methods in the online environment and also beautifully recapitulated the year 2020 strongly stating that because of the pandemic we are ten years ahead of time.

Dr. Maninder Kapoor, Head of Department, NIT, ended the session with the statement that if a student genuinely wishes to learn, he can truly improve despite all the challenges faced online.
