Design Hive Sundays is a webinar series started by the Fashion Design Department to interact with the artists, designers and industry experts from the field of Design, Art and Culture. During the pandemic lockdown, the regular classes at the University had ceased to exist to this was a new way we devised to connect with the creative people around us and keep the creativity around us alive.

Glitter on a Matt is a bunch of Resin Artists from Jamshedpur. Founder – Quarratul. Quarratul was studying in Japan when the pandemic struck and she had to come back to Jamshedpur, this was a time when she started exploring her creativity. She had also been battling with depression and resin art kept her motivated. She would create artwork on moulds and then waiting for the artwork to set, it gave her an anticipation; something to be eager about.

Quarratul was introduced to the students who spoke about her creative venture – Glitter on Matte along with her friend. They create lifestyle and home furnishing products with resin art. Resin Art is an upcoming trend and a unique product. They have a small workshop is Aashiyana, Jamshedpur from where they operate. They sell their products through online channels and fairs.

Quarratul shared the Resin Art technique with the students through videos. She also showed her collection of different products. The students were thrilled to learn of this new art. Some students were also intrigued by the interesting jewellery that can be created with this technique.

Resin art also finds its use in architecture and interior design, it is durable, creates a vibrant look. Even lots of furniture can be designed using resin art.

Quarratul also invited the students for workshops which would be held in the city after pandemic lockdown. The engagement was very fruitful and the students had a great interaction with Quarratul. It was also very inspiring for the students as Quarratul would be of the same age as many of the students and she had been handling this venture.

Students were provided with the certificate of participation for the event.
