India is a home to people from various cultures and religious groups. Each state has a distinguished character when it comes to food habits, lifestyle choices, culture, art clothing and more. This is the real beauty of Indian; its diversity. Yet Independence Day is a Day when the entire nation comes together to remember this historical day.

The department of fashion design assigned the students of the department to do a styling activity. This activity was to sensitize the students to the various cultures across different states and style themselves accordingly. Each student was to choose a state or community; they researched about the clothing worn in that particular state, they had to style attire with accessories and makeup on themselves and share the pictures of the same.

The students styled themselves as females from – Punjab, West Bengal, Gujarat, Rajasthan, Christian Community and Ho Tribe from Jharkhand. They shared the pictures of the same. A poster was created by the students as a message from the entire department to the University with wishes of Independence.

The students enjoyed and also learned a lot through this experiential assignment. It was a fun activity and also it brought about a sense of belongingness among the students for the nation.

The students also received certificates later for this activity.
