COMPANY PROFILE:

Alumnus Software Ltd. in December 2000, Alumnus is closely held between investors, founders and some employee shareholding. It is a Public Limited Company (unlisted) subject to most disclosure norms which apply to listed corporations.

Alumnus Software Ltd. is a company of engineers who put engineering above everything else. And they like being in the company of engineers. That is the way it goes about them. They build software, frequently solving bespoke problems.

They are proud of the quality and performance their solutions achieve. They grow every year but choose to remain manageable in size. That is important to ensure they get all that they demand from their colleagues. They know their future lies in building the next generation of capabilities which come when 'things' talk to each other, especially in the context of Internet of Things.

Besides their indulgence with engineering, they appreciate goodness of character and generosity of the heart. Their company is what they all are and they are in good company. With a client list such as their, motivation to work a bit harder and to be a bit different is not difficult to find.
