OBJECTIVE:

The objective of the event “Reconteur- spin a story” is to encourage is to enhance participants’ creativity, communication skills, and confidence by encouraging them to construct and present original narratives. This activity aims to develop imaginative thinking, improve verbal expression, and strengthen storytelling techniques while fostering active listening and audience engagement. It also helps participants organize thoughts logically, express emotions effectively, and build interpersonal skills, making it a valuable exercise for personality development and public speaking.

DETAILS:

As part of AAGAZ, a cultural event, ARKA JAIN University organized Reconteur’26: The primary objective of Raconteur – Spin a Story is to cultivate creativity, imagination, and effective communication among participants by engaging them in spontaneous storytelling. This activity is designed to enhance verbal fluency, confidence, and presentation skills while encouraging original thinking and emotional expression. Through story creation and narration, participants learn how to structure ideas logically, develop characters, and convey messages clearly to an audience. The program also aims to strengthen listening abilities, teamwork, and adaptability as participants respond to prompts and build narratives in real time. Additionally, it promotes critical thinking by allowing individuals to interpret situations creatively and articulate perspectives. Overall, the activity supports holistic personality development by improving self-expression, public speaking competence, and social interaction skills, making it especially beneficial for academic and professional growth.

TAKEAWAY (OUTCOMES):

Participants gained enhanced confidence in expressing ideas verbally and learned how to communicate thoughts clearly and creatively. The activity helped improve storytelling skills, including structuring narratives, developing characters, and maintaining audience engagement. Students developed greater imagination and spontaneity, enabling them to think quickly and respond creatively to given situations. It strengthened listening and comprehension abilities, as participants had to understand prompts and build meaningful stories accordingly. The program also fostered interpersonal skills such as collaboration, empathy, and respect for diverse perspectives. Additionally, participants improved their public speaking, emotional expression, and critical thinking capabilities. Overall, the activity contributed to holistic personality development by promoting self-awareness, creativity, leadership qualities, and effective communication, which are essential for academic success and professional growth.
